Jane Austen 200

The Mysterious Miss Austen

13 May to 24 July

Explore with us the intriguing question - who is Jane Austen? This landmark exhibition will look at the author's work, life and relationship to Hampshire, the county that provided inspiration for her novels. The centrepiece will be six portraits of Jane together under one roof for the very first time, including one from a private collection which has not been seen in public for more than 40 years. Of the handful of items that survive today which actually belonged to Jane and can be traced directly back to her, on show will be her silk pelisse coat and a purse. Other treasures include the manuscript of an alternative ending to Persuasion in her own hand, while Grayson Perry's Jane Austen in E17 ceramic is evidence of her lasting legacy and influence on the arts.

Admission: suggested donation £3.00

Turner and the Sun

5 August to 15 October

This exhibition showcases J.M.W. Turner as the undisputed master of light, and particularly focuses on his lifelong obsession with the sun. Combining naturalistic observation with imaginative flights of fancy, his light-drenched landscapes encapsulate the elemental force of his art and remain as dazzling today as they were for a contemporary audience.

Admission: suggested donation £3.00

A Guest in Turner's House

29 July to 7 September

An exhibition of work created by Winchester-born artist Katie Sollohub during her residency in Turner's House in Twickenham telling the fascinating story of the building's recent restoration. Now based in Sussex, Katie is interested in documenting and recording the places in which she lives and works and provides a unique record of the house prior to its extensive restoration which returned the building as much as possible to the house Turner designed and called home.
